modern bonnets for
breastfeeding babes

Message for Breastfeeding Moms from Diane Sam, founder of MoBoleez:

One day, before you blink an eye, your baby will grow up

So, know this:

you are the mother of this child, listen to the stirrings of your heart, and you will know what path to follow have fun, enjoy nursing breastfeeding helps build a close, intimate bond between you and your child, so if you need help establishing or continuing nursing, get it cherish the feeling you have when you are nursing your baby, especially those early morning feeds when no one else in the house is up.

breastfeeding and motherhood can open your heart in ways you never thought were possible.

Why am I passionate about breastfeeding?

Because, in the end, there are only moments. And a moment breastfeeding can feel as close to pure tenderness as we are ever going to get in this life, and I want more tenderness. I want more women to experience how it feels to bend down and kiss your child's head as it opens its mouth to suckle up against you, to stroke its little head, and know what it feels like to have milk flowing out of your body. I want to believe that somehow, for all its troubles, the universe still offers us love and I can still experience something pure and gentle and good.

Most of all, I guess just want to believe in heaven, and moments I've felt with my babies have been the closest I've ever come.
